

A Letter from Baldor

Retail has always been part of Baldor's DNA.

Our roots run deep, stretching all the way back to 1918 when Louis Balducci began selling produce from a pushcart in Greenpoint, Brooklyn, and later, the iconic Balducci's store in Greenwich Village, New York. In the 1990s, we became Baldor Specialty Foods as you know us today, bringing quality ingredients and a customized wholesale experience to New York's finest chefs. After decades of honing our craft, we're getting back in touch with our retail roots, equipped with our world-class service and signature culinary-focused approach to give you an edge among your customers.

I joined the Baldor Retail Team this year during one of the most exciting times in our company's history. We're rapidly expanding in the New York, Boston, and Washington, D.C. regions—where we've called home for years—as well as in Philadelphia, where we recently opened a new warehouse to better serve the region.

Our selection of curated and quality products geared to retail continues to grow—not just an ever-increasing selection of the premium produce we're known for, but also specialty, dairy and meat. Our merchants are sourcing at the highest level, curating an elite set of products from farms and vendors that care about taste as much as sustainability and humane animal practices.

We're especially proud of our value-added Fresh Cuts sliced and diced fruits and vegetables and our Urban Roots veggie-forward snacks and sides, all processed in our SQF facility within 24 hours of delivery. These are options that remove work from your kitchens and facilities, to help you manage today's increasingly challenging labor shortages.

And, we have a growing team who have deep expertise in retail and are ready to support you as your business grows to best serve your customers' needs.

As you can see, a lot is changing around here. But not everything: We're just as committed today to delivering you the highest-quality food and service as those who came before us. And as the retail landscape becomes ever more challenging, we will continue to partner with our customers to help them navigate the issues they face and continue to delight their customers. What's keeping you up at night? Drop me a line at the email below; I'd love to hear from you and brainstorm ideas to help you succeed with your shoppers.
