About Elmhurst

Recently Elmhurst has made a major shift to lead the plant-based revolution. Now simply called Elmhurst, its minimally processed nutmilks are just as nutritious and pure as its famous conventional milk, with none of the emulsifiers, thickeners or stabilizers used in other leading brands. After 20 years, Dr. Cheryl Mitchell finally was able to unleash the proteins and all of the nutrients in grains, nuts, and seeds using only traditional mechanical and fermentation methods. The end result was the transformation of these plant based foods into a ready to consume, deliciously creamy, natural plant milk having essentially all the nutrients and superior digestibility of the starting material. She has shown the world how to transform the cooked grains, nuts or seeds and release the nutrients that not only make the creamy plant milk, but stabilize it as well. There is no need for added thickeners, emulsifiers, stabilizers, or oils, as these are all naturally contained in the plant and just needed to be released. Excited by the potential of the nutritional value of "Milked Plants" vs. the existing thickened water with added plants for flavor, Henry Schwartz convinced Cheryl Mitchell to bring her methods for making these non-dairy Milked Plants to Western New York, where the expertise of Elmhurst in the packaging and distribution of dairy milks, could be used to deliver these unique milked plant products throughout the East and beyond.
