About Mann Packing

In the late 1930s when the United States was beginning to recover from the Great Depression, a young Stanford graduate came to California's Salinas Valley seeking employment. H.W. "Cy" Mann began his career trimming fruit and lettuce for forty cents an hour. He loaded grain onto boxcars and as a result of his hard work and dedication, became foreman of a produce shed. It was 1939 when he opened a fresh carrot packing operation called, H.W. Mann. Shortly thereafter, Mr. Mann found his claim to fame in the fresh vegetable industry, namely broccoli. It was in those early days that Mr. Mann built a reputation for honesty and integrity—one that remains with the company to-day. We are one of the country's leading suppliers of fresh vegetables, including washed and ready to use fresh-cut veggies, snack packs and party trays, and washed and trimmed lettuce products for foodservice. We are best known for our proprietary Broccolini product and our award-winning Stringless Sugar Snap Peas.
